phical plans and globes. He pleaded that the goods are duly assessed at nil rate of duty in terms of the Tariff and the dispute in the pending matter is only to the levy of auxiliary duty. He pleaded that the issue is whether globe is to be treated as map and if it is treated as map, then the appellants are entitled to benefit of exemption under Notification 112/87-Cus., dated 1-3-1987 vide Sl. No. 24 of the said notification and there is a specific exemption to maps. Sh. Kampani, Ld. Consultant, pleaded that similar imports have been made all over the country. The goods have been imported duty-free and no auxiliary duty has been levied. He also argued that in the past as well as in the future, the appellants have been given the benefit of exemption notification for the levy of auxiliary duty. He argued that globe is nothing but a map. In support of his arguments, he referred to Oxford Dictionary meaning which appears at pages 57 and 58 of the Paper Book and he also referred to the meaning of globe as well as map as given in Encyclopaedia Britannica (photo copy of the same has been filed) and globe - there is sphere or ball that bears a map of earth on its surface and is mounted on an axis that permits rotation.
